LOWEY BUNDY SICHOL is an award-winning children's author with an MBA from the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College. She is a pioneer in teaching entrepreneurship and business to kids, inspiring the next generation to think big and believe in their ideas.

After graduating business school, Lowey worked in brand management, then ran her own MBA case writing business with prestigious clients like Dartmouth College and Northwestern University. She launched her award-winning entrepreneurship books for kids in 2019 and spends much of the year speaking at elementary schools around the country. Titles include: From an Idea to Disney, From an Idea to Nike, From an Idea to Google, From an Idea to LEGO (HarperCollins, 2019); Idea Makers: 15 Fearless Female Entrepreneurs (Chicago Review Press, 2022); Cookie Queen: How One Girl Started Tate's Bake Shop (Random House, 2023).

Lowey also creates innovative programs that help kids practice entrepreneurship and develop the skills needed for success. These programs include LetMeFail.org and Kids Idea Tank. Finally, Lowey has developed a Giving Back Program, in which she partners with corporations to bring free author visits and entrepreneurship books to students and teachers at Title 1 schools.

Lowey has been featured on NBC, ABC, CBS, Fox, and The History Channel's The Toys that Built America and her books and programs have launched a movement to bring entrepreneurship education into elementary and middle grade schools across the nation.

Lowey received an MBA from the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College and a BA from Hamilton College where she played softball and rugby. She lives in the Chicagoland area with her husband Adam, three children, and two big dogs.
